Does Sweden have a strategic electricity reserve?

The Commission has approved, under Article 107 (3) (c) TFEU and the CEEAG, a EUR 300 million Swedish measure establishing a strategic electricity reserve to safeguard security of supply in emergency situations.

Which measures target security of electricity supply in Sweden?

Sweden is planning to introduce several measures targeting security of electricity supply. As explained in recital (10), Sweden confirms that the strategic reserve is the only measure that targets security of electricity supply in Sweden.

How will the security of electricity supply in Sweden affect economic activity?

The strategic reserve will ensure the security of electricity supply in Sweden. As a secondary effect, the security of electricity supply supported by the measure will stimulate other economic activities that rely on electricity.

Does Sweden need a strategic reserve?

Sweden has a strategic reserve to address market failures that undermine the security of electricity supply in Sweden. However, despite those appropriate and proportionate improvements to market design and investments in network assets, already implemented or planned, the strategic reserve is still needed to a
